

HELPFUL HINTS WITH FUSSY EATERS

A happy, healthy, satisfied and balanced puppy/dog will have no problem when it comes to eating, they will eat everything you put in front of them. One of the most important things one has to remember is to give your dog a healthy variety of foods like fish, chicken, beef as well as dry foods and sometimes a good tin food, and not always the same so that they don't get board with what they are eating let's not forget we don't always like to eat the same every day.

If your dog always eats well and suddenly gets fussy with its food stop and think WHY is this happening?

If your dog is healthy and still won't eat then just try these ideas

- Give your dog its food and leave him/her to eat it
- Wait for about a half an hour and then remove the food your puppy/dog has had enough time to eat.
- If the food is still OK place it into the fridge
- Try giving the food back to him/her a few hour later, if your dog still does not want the food put it back into the fridge it will not harm your adult dog not eating for a day or so but make sure that it always drinks fresh water your puppy should at least has some puppy milk, ricotta cheese or something else that it likes.

If you give in to your adult dog with its fussy eating it will think it has the upper hand and will try to get away with this when ever you give it something it does not like. With puppies on the other hand it's a little different there could be many reasons why your puppy is not eating.

- Teething
- Upset belly
- Using common sense and knowing your dog goes a long way when it comes to feeding/raising/and taking care of your beloved four legged friend.
